You need to run the program from command-line mode, like this: java -jar PVR2MPG.jar -f video.PVR -o video.MPG -e video.MPE video.PVR When video.MPE is not found, the program will ask you to select another video file and voila: User selected: video.AVI Video file converted with: PVR2MPG 1.0.5 open source code A: Resolved in v1.0.5 of the program. Problem: I had noticed in the help file that mpeg2converter claimed to be able to convert PVR files to mpeg, but the above method never worked (i.e., it always tried to convert a.pvr file to.mpg instead of .mpeg). Solution: The program now checks if the file is a.pvr file and also if it is a pvr.xbox file. If either of those is true it will convert the file to mpeg2 and then convert the result to the chosen output format. It also supports canceling the conversion. Finally, it will not ask if the conversion was successful or not until the conversion is finished. Why didn't anyone else notice this?

The central hypothesis of this proposal is that the initiating insult to the mucosa in Crohn's disease (CD), and possibly ulcerative colitis (UC) as well, involves a still unknown mucosal antigen or combination of antigens. Work done to date has allowed us to develop the working hypothesis that the initiating cause of Crohn's disease is a mucosal T lymphocyte that is sensitized to a mucosal, non-inherited bacterial antigen. In order to test this hypothesis, we will investigate patients with CD (and some UC patients) and as controls, patients with UC, who have some degree of distal ileal CD. In order to investigate this hypothesis, we propose to analyze the genetics of CD and UC in combination with other immunologic factors in the course of their pathogenesis. Specifically, we propose to 1) carry out a thorough analysis of CD patients regarding their clinical course, response to therapy, and other immunologic factors; 2) continue our studies of the genetics of UC and the genetic relationship between UC and CD; 3) use normal biopsies obtained from our own normal controls (with family histories of the diseases) to investigate the pathogenesis of these disorders; 4) develop a patient-based system to examine intestinal antigen f678ea9f9e
